In recent years, factors such as population growth and urbanization and the subsequent upward trend in construction have caused an increase in the demand for the production of wooden products. In this regard, Arta Industrial Group founded Arta Pan factory in 2010 in order to provide part of the society's needs and to complete the domestic production chain of cellulose products. At this time, Arta Pan Company entered the production cycle with the production of MDF, HDF and Particleboard. The combination of creativity and skill of experts and experienced employees along with modern equipment and high technology made Arta Pan's Melamine and Raw Particle Boards and compressed boards with a quality that can compete with foreign products in the market. Some of these boards are supplied in raw form to the domestic and foreign markets The other part is processed in the factories of Arta Industrial Group, products such as profile MDF and decowall, melamine papers, particle boards, melamine and laminate flooring tiles. Currently, Arta Pan continues to operate with two production lines In the shadow of the efforts of the experts, the establishment of the third and fourth line for the production of Raw MDF and HDF boards has been put on the agenda of Arta Industrial Group; to soon become one of the largest compact boards production lines in the country.

CPL

The terms CPL

CPL stands for Continuous Pressed Laminates HPL stands for High Pressure Laminates (HPL with a thickness of ≥ 2 mm are, according to the EN 438 standard, compact laminates)

Laminate description

Decorative laminate boards consist of strips of cellulose fibre (paper) impregnated with heat-hardening resins. These are joined using the manufacturing methods. The coating layer generally consists of an overlay impregnated with resin, decor paper and sometimes a barrier. The core of a laminate consists of kraft papers that are also impregnated. Applying heat and pressure causes the resins to flow and subsequently cure. Cross-linking of the resins, reinforced by the cellulose fibres of the papers, results in a very dense material with a sealed surface.
